

An aerial photograph of a large-scale aquaculture operation at night. The water is dark blue, and the farm is illuminated by numerous small lights, creating a grid-like pattern of floating pens. The lights are arranged in a regular, repeating pattern across the entire visible area, suggesting a highly organized and extensive farming system. The overall scene is a vast, illuminated expanse of water with a complex, geometric layout of structures.

photo by kawatoko